COLORADO LAW

Claiming your tax exemption in Ignacio

Staff report
SOUTHERN UTE INDIAN TRIBE

Under longstanding principles of federal Indian law, a state's power to tax tribes or tribal members in Indian Country is very limited. Two years ago, Colorado law incorporated the federal law sales tax exemption into Colorado state law (C.R.S. 39-26-727). Under federal law and the 2014 Colorado state law, on-Reservation sales to Southern Ute and Ute Mountain Ute tribal members are exempt from State and local sales tax. Under the State law, Reservation means either the Southern Ute Indian Reservation or the Reservation of the Ute Mountain Ute Tribe and includes the Town of Ignacio.

It seems that tribal members may have either not always known of the exemption or not always claimed the exemption when making purchases from Town of Ignacio vendors and Town vendors have either not always known of or been willing to honor the exemption. The Tribe has been busy reaching out to Ignacio businesses to ensure that they are honoring the exemption. Ignacio businesses must comply with Colorado Department of Revenue recordkeeping requirements including a requirement to document exempt sales.

Recently, the Department of Revenue suggested that having tribal members present their tribal identification cards and sign a Statement of Exemption from Colorado Sales and Use Tax will be sufficient for its recordkeeping purposes. The Tribe supports those suggestions as a workable method for tribal members to claim the sales tax exemption and for local businesses to document the sales.

The Tribe is asking for tribal members assistance on this issue. Re-

EPD hosts Regional Tribal Operations Committee meeting

By Marlene Scott-Jewett
ENVIRONMENTAL PROGRAMS
DIVISION

The Environmental Programs Division (EPD) hosted the summer meeting of the Regional Tribal Operations Committee (RTOC), June 14-16 at the Sky Ute Casino Resort Events Center. The RTOC is a working committee of environmental directors from the 27 tribal nations in EPA Region 8 and EPA Region 8 representatives that help to build environmental capacity and support implementation of ongoing tribal environmental programs. The RTOC promotes tribal environmental priorities and funding in EPA regional priorities and budget decision-making. The RTOC members take turns in hosting the meetings to allow participants to experience the environmental issues of concern in Indian Country. The theme of this meeting was: Emergency Preparedness.

The opening ceremony included welcoming remarks from Tribal Councilman Tyson Thompson, presentation of the flags by the Southern Ute Veterans Association, an invocation from Tribal elder Alden Naranjo, and flag and honor songs from the Yellow Jacket drum group.

The meeting also included the recognition of the late Michael Frost and his work and vision for the Southern Ute Indian Tribe's Environmental Programs Division. Many of the RTOC representatives worked with the late Mr. Frost and addressed the Frost family in attendance.

The first day of the Emergency Preparedness Conference consisted of a keynote presentation by Peter Butler, of the Animas Stakeholders Group, on the existing environmental conditions of the Silverton Mining District and how we came to a Superfund decision.

Tom Johnson, EPD Division Head, presented the Tribe's response to the Gold King Mine Spill and

At the last Tri-Ute Council meeting the council passed a resolution supporting presidential designation of a Bears Ears National Monument in Southeast Utah. Bears Ears region is a 1.9 million acre landscape that is sacred to many Southwest Native American tribes. The region is also believed to be home to more than 100,000 archeological sites.

The Southern Ute Environmental Programs Division planted over 1000 trees along Stollsteimer Creek running downstream from Lake Capote. The two-week riparian enhancement project covered 1.7 miles and 9.7 acres. A process called long-stem planting was utilized to drill down to the watertable, giving the newly planted trees an advantage so watering needs to be less frequently.

Casino hosts Indian Motorcycle bikers

By Sacha Smith
THE SOUTHERN UTE DRUM

The Rocky Mountain Indian Motorcycle Riding Group (IMRG) met up on the Southern Ute Indian Reservation for the 2016 Durango Rendezvous June 10-11. The rendezvous was held to give Indian Motorcycle riders a place to meet fellow riders and to enjoy the scenic rides Southwest Colorado has to offer.

It all started with the Rocky Mountain IMRG planned to meet fellow chapters in the Four Corners region to enjoy some rides. The meet and greet started out at about 30 to 40 bikers and blew up to a couple hundred, Rocky Mountain Indian Motorcycle Riding Group President, Terry Connett said.

Connett said he looked all over the area for places to host the meet up and soon enough began working with casino staff on making the event happen.

This is an upscale event and we wanted to have it at a nice place, Connett said about picking the casino as the place to host the event.

Everyone has been so cooperative and so nice and friendly; it has been a great experience.

The two-day event kicked off with a meet greet banquet at the Sky Ute Casino Events

Vice Chairman of the Rocky Mountain Indian Motorcycle Riding Group (IMRG) Dennis Campbell presented Southern Ute Chairman Clement J. Frost and the Southern Ute Indian Tribe with an honorary membership to the riding group during the Durango Rendezvous, Friday, June 10.

Center, Friday, June 10. Connett said many of the riders keep in touch on Facebook and have never met in person; so bringing them all together in one location was a special thing. He also made it a point to connect with the Southern Ute Indian Tribe and wanted the riders to experience the culture of the Southern Ute people.

To show appreciation, President and Vice president of IMGR recognized Chairman Clement J. Frost as an honorary member of the group, and named the Southern Ute Indian Tribe as an honorary chapter.

Frost thanked the riders for the recognition and for visiting the reservation. He told them he values the friendship that has been made.

Also helping Connett

display the Southern Ute culture were the Southern Ute Heritage Dancers, Yellow Jacket drum group, and tribal elder, Alden Naranjo. Naranjo spoke about the Southern Ute culture and the heritage dancers showcased their dancing skills to the tentative audience.

Connett also said they made it a point to have half of all the vendors be Native Americans. The brand and its riders share a special connection with the Native Americans and they aim to honor the history of all Native American peoples, he said.

For next year, Connett said he hopes to host it at the casino again, and plans to make it a longer event; giving riders a chance to ride and see everything the area has to offer.

Being alert while you drive

Staff report
SOUTHERN UTE POLICE DEPT.

Driving takes great concentration. Focusing on the road, other drivers, objects in the roadway and wildlife takes a lot of energy. There are times when we go driving brainlessly down the road as a part of our routine. Maybe we were just tired, but we get to our destination and can't really remember the drive. How do you keep driving while being alert?

As police officers, we are taught to drive with keeping your head on a swivel looking all around. Expecting the unexpected, we look at everything around us continuously with an expectation that something is going to be different. We look for differences in color, contrast and movement. We let our eyes search for those differences and we begin to spot the driver who rolls through the stop sign (before he hits us). We see the color of the small license tags that have been out of date for over a year. We see the bright face of a child as they bounce up and down on the back seat without wearing the proper safety seat. Officers are taught to be alert while driving.

One of the questions that get asked frequently during defensive driving classes is how do I keep from being tired during a boring drive? Playing the What If? Game is a large part of staying focused and alert. Seeing a situation ahead and asking yourself what would happen if happens? Seeing a deer ahead on the side of the road, you would ask yourself What if the deer jumped over to the middle of my lane; what action would I take? You ask yourself,

What would happen if that driver starts to swerve over into my lane? By constantly asking and answering the situations around you, you stay alert and ready for anything that comes your way. If you need to stop and pull over, take a few minutes to get outside the vehicle and stretch.

Alertness is one driving skill that we have to practice constantly to make our driving safer, saving time and money in the process. The Southern Ute Police Department wishes you to have a safer time on the road.

member that this exemption applies only to state and local sales tax. It is not an exemption from tribal sales tax.

When claiming exemption from state and local sales and use taxes on the Reservation, tribal members should be prepared to:

- Let the vendor know that you wish to claim the exemption;
- Show your tribal identification card;
- If asked to do so, fill out and sign a Statement of Exemption from Color-do Sales and Use Tax or similar form.

By taking these steps, tribal members can claim the exemption and help make compliance with the law easier on local businesses, which will likely result in higher rates of compliance.

Health Camp inspires students to explore careers in healthcare

Staff report
SW COLO. AREA HEALTH EDUCATION CENTER

Southwestern Colorado Area Health Education Center (SWCAHEC) hosted the Health Careers Camp for area teens last week. The camp held on the campus of Fort Lewis College on June 7, 8, 9 and 10th drew twenty-seven 8th, 9th and 10th grade students from the eight counties: Archuleta, Dolores, Hinsdale, La Plata, Montezuma, Ouray, San Juan and San Miguel. With support from The Colorado AHEC Program, The Telluride Foundation, and Alpine Bank, among other sponsors, 44% of students were able to attend the camp with a scholarship.

Students had the opportunity to explore various fields within the health care industry from learning hands-on medical activities such as application of sutures, checking for vital signs and being a first responder from Durango Fire and Rescue, to shadowing professionals in their medical facilities.

One of the highlights included a tour at the Durango Tech Center with Easton LaChappelle, a 20- year old prodigy pioneering prosthetics using 3D printing. As owner of Unlimited Tomorrow, LaChappelle's mission is to make technology accessible to those who need it most. Students were able to touch the 3D objects and see a robotic limb fully operational. They learned that through web research, a bit of genius and hard work, one could achieve the unthinkable.

The Health Careers Camp founded 3 years ago by Kathleen McInnis, Executive Director of the Southwestern Colorado Area Health Education Center, has continued to grow the camp each year, expanding their reach to engage a diverse group of students.

In 2015, 30% of campers reported that the camp helped them decide on a health career, said McInnis, SWCAHEC's Executive Director. By using an interactive approach to learning about health careers, we hope to inspire students to pursue a career in the healthcare industry, said McInnis. On June 27th, McInnis will travel to Washington, DC to speak on the importance of Summer Health Career Camps at the National AHEC Organization Conference, the AHEC national leadership and networking organization.

SWCAHEC is a regional non-profit organization in Southwestern Colorado that broadly focuses on improving access to quality healthcare in eight counties; Archuleta, Dolores, Hinsdale, La Plata, Montezuma, Ouray, San Juan and San Miguel. SWCAHEC provides support and coordinates programs for the community, health professionals and students interested in advancing health.

Funding for health coverage assistance continues in Colo.

By Lauren Patterson
LA PLATA FAMILY CENTERS

The La Plata Family Centers Coalition is pleased to announce it has received continuation funding from the Colorado Health Foundation to conduct health coverage outreach and enrollment activities in Archuleta and La Plata counties. The $293,096 award will extend current funding from the Foundation through July 2017 to increase health literacy and further reduce the number of uninsured individuals and families in Southwest Colorado.

The Foundation funding supports outreach and enrollment activities of the following Collaborative partners: Axis Health System, Archuleta County Department of Human Services, La Plata County Department of Human Services and the La Plata Family Centers Coalition. All partners provide trained enrollment specialists at their sites to assist individuals and families in obtaining health insurance during open enrollment season, November January, and throughout the year for those with a qualifying life event or who need assistance with applying for the state's Medicaid program, Health First Colorado, or Child Health Plan Plus (CHP+).

The La Plata Family Centers Coalition has helped hundreds of individuals and families learn about and apply for health coverage.

This program has been essential for me to find affordable health insurance. I'm deeply grateful! Family Center Client

Curiosity Afterschool Program seeking students

Damon Toledo
THE SOUTHERN UTE DRUM

Since 2012, the Curiosity Afterschool Program has been collaborating with Ignacio Middle School by supplementing school day curriculum with after school activities that reinforce and compliment regular academic programs, but do not replicate the classroom day. The program's central goals are to positively impact student achievement, increase academic growth, and increase the number of developmental assets among students. The Curiosity Afterschool Program is operated by the Southern Ute Community Action Program, and has served approximately 90 Ignacio Middle School students per year since 2012, with nearly 360 middle school students to date. A number of activities are available for students to participate in, which include theater, service learning/volunteerism, overnight field trips, book clubs, and a number of others. From 2015-2016, curiosity participants produced three plays that were met with success: Cafe Murder, a comedy mystery, Grease, a scaled-down version of the classical musical, and The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, an adaptation of the Washington Irving classic. Additionally, students learned more about the history of Colorado during an overnight stay in the San Juan Mountains, where they explored early mining at the Old Hundred Mine in Silverton, hiked the waterfalls near Ouray, soaked in the hot springs, and took a jeep tour of the high country. After an evaluation in 2014, the students reception to these activities were met with praise, claiming they had fun, made lots of friends, and learned how to be social. Responses on the Developmental Assets Profile showed that Curiosity participants improved on eight developmental assets correlated with positive behavior. For four of these variables (Social Competencies, Constructive Use of Time, Social Context, Community Context) the improvements were statistically significant. The Curiosity Program will be entering its 5th year in the fall and encourages Ignacio Middle School students to join. Funding for the program will continue through 2017 when the next five-year grant application will be made to the Colorado Department of Education. In preparation, stakeholders will be assembled to provide guidance and feedback for how to improve Curiosity's reach and effectiveness in the Ignacio Schools. Those interested in attending the program may contact the SUCAP Youth Services at 970-563-4127.

Marijuana & Your Future

Marijuana charges could affect college scholarships, even outside Colorado.

Hard vs degree, you know what you need to succeed!

& Your Team

Did you know marijuana smoke contains many of the same cancer-causing chemicals in tobacco smoke?

Marijuana can be addictive.

Common symptoms are tolerance, continued use even if it interferes with other areas of life (like responsibilities with school, family, etc.) and withdrawals (like difficulty sleeping, change in appetite, irritability).

Dope & Your Freedom

Getting caught in possession (even the first time) can cost you your license.

Since dope impairs your motor skills, Driving High = a DUT.

Ganja & Your Family

You know your actions affect more than you. Set an example of success.

TODAY'S SUPER HEROES

CONGRATULATIONS, ADULT ROLE MODELS!

Having an adult role model who exhibits positive, responsible behavior is one of the 40 Developmental Assets – building blocks that help young people grow up to be healthy, caring, and responsible.

The more Developmental Assets young people acquire, the better their chances of succeeding in school and becoming happy, healthy, and contributing members of their communities and society.

Michelle Wennerstrom
Bayfield Winner

"I feel beyond honored to have been identified as an adult role model. There have been so many role models in my life that have not only guided my choices in which paths to take, but have also inspired me to become the person who possessed the qualities that I admired in them. I would like to take this rare opportunity to celebrate a few of those phenomenal people as well. Thank you Dana Henson, Claire May, Alicejean Smith, Tom Kuhn, Dorothy Rubner, as well as a beyond blessed number of students, both present and past, for being the inspiring catalysts they are and have been.

Sarah Wright
Durango Winner

"I am humbled and honored to be selected as a winner of the adult role model campaign award. The students that I have worked with inspire me to make a difference in our community. Teens today have many more challenges and stressors than most of us ever had to deal with - it is hard for some of them to realize the opportunities that lie before them. I try to connect with them by sharing experiences and stories from my own life and hope that they develop healthy strategies to cope with the frustrations that they encounter. We laugh a lot together - we both end up empowered to be more engaged and thoughtful citizens."

Stephen Morris
Ignacio Winner

"The impact of just how special this award is hit me after seeing the names of the runner-ups. I greatly admire both Ms. Hedrick and Ms. Stone for the special contributions that they are and have been making long before I got here. To be chosen by a group of young men and women that make you earn their respect makes me feel very proud. I will continue to work everyday to earn their trust and respect with the hope that they will continue to allow me to affect positive change in their lives."

Tava Wilson
Native American Winner

"I am extremely honored to be recognized as a Native American Community Role Model and truly grateful to be a part of this community. Thank you to those who nominated me and supported my nomination. To work with youth is a privilege and I don't take my role as community role model lightly. I only hope I can continue to inspire youth and serve as a positive influence in their lives."

Did you nominate a role model in your life?

The first 50 who nominated an Adult Role Model can head to Maria's Bookshop in downtown Durango and claim a free $12 gift card to the shop!

Environmental Programs Division Head, Tom Johnson (right) talks with RTOC attendees about a Ferricrete rock outcrop exposure during a site tour in Silverton, Colo. Thursday, June 16.

lessons learned for environmental directors. Curtis Hartenstine, Water Quality Program Manager, presented a discussion on tribal water quality standards and results of the tribe's Water Quality Program sampling on the Animas River.

The second day, the Tribe's Air Quality Program presented information on the tribe's Environmental Leadership Knowledge Seminar (E.L.K.S.) that is open to tribal youth. Also, featured was a presentation and group discussion from Lanny Holms, Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), a virtual tour of the Gladstone interim water treatment plant by Laura Jenkins, EPA Region 8 Media Officer, and an oil pipeline spill tabletop exercise and group discussion with Craig Myers, EPA Region 8. Myers was the incident commander on the Gold King Release.

The RTOC membership presented Alfreda Mitre, retiring EPA Region 8 Tribal Assistance Program Director, appreciation gifts and words of thanks for the years Mitre dedicated to the Region 8 tribes and Indian Country.

Ms. Mitre advocated for [Tribal Nations], our needs, how we live can't be taught. A lot of us would not be where we are without Alfreda. We wish you the very best on retirement and on your trail, Michael Durglo, Jr., CSKT member and RTOC Chairman said.

Mitre, a Las Vegas Paiute replied, I am a federal employee right now, but I am Indian forever. We have the connection to the land.

The final day of the conference included a site tour in Silverton, Colorado with EPASuperfund staff. Remediation of the environmental damage due to the Gold King Mine spill in August 2015 was the main focus of the tour. Road stops on the tour included, a Ferricrete rock outcrop exposure, an abandoned mill tailing pile, a roadside tour of the Gladstone water treatment plant and the Red & Bonita Mine. The tour allowed for an active question & answer session for the RTOC attendees and EPA staff.

The RTOC attendees and their tribal nations face similar environmental issues, whether it be housing remediation due to meth production, lack of grant funding or water contamination due to oil and gas production or transport.

Allyson Two Bears, Standing Rock Sioux Tribe, voiced her concern and frustration of the proposed construction of the Dakota Access Pipeline a/k/a Bakken Pipeline that will carry oil under the Missouri River. The proposed pipeline is less than one fourth mile from the Standing Rock Reservation boundary. The Standing Rock Nation was never consulted or given the opportunity to comment on the initial Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) for the pipeline. The proposed pipeline has the potential for leaks and spills, which may have an impact on the native riparian plant habitat used for ceremonial purposes, food harvests, and the drinking water for all stakeholders downstream.

a 10-person crew, along with assistance from other Southern Ute tribal departments planted the trees from June 13 through June 16.

The area we are replanting was overgrazed, right up to the creek, with bad land use practices we want to reestablish the forestation so the wildlife can enjoy the vegetation, Nylander said.

The area south of Lake Capote is established as a conservation area. Archeologists have already done surveys to the land prior to the Wildlife Divisions tree planting five years ago.

EPD Recycling Technician, Phillip Martinez also assisted during the week with planting and watering, two additional EPD interns also watered the trees.

Southwest Conservation Corps (SCC) crewmembers constructed the caging and provided additional labor. SCC also operates conservation service programs across Southern Colorado and Northern New Mexico.

Chokecherry, Golden Current, Woods Rose, Redosier Dogwood, Narrow leaf Cottonwood, Rio Grande Cottonwood, Three Leaf Sumac and Silver Bufaloberry were planted and all had to be caged to protect them from being damaged by elk and beavers.

The purpose of the project is to improve water quality along Stollsteimer Creek, but there are other benefits to wildlife and the land by having a healthy riparian area.

Chris J. Cloud/SU Drum

EPD Senior Water Quality Specialist, Pete Nylander and Phillip Martinez, EPD recycling technician get together to plant a tree sapling.

The project was funded through EPA grant funds. The project was successful due to the Southern Ute Range and Wildlife Divisions assistance with labor and use of their equipment. The Agriculture Division also helped unload caging materials with their forklift.

There is no way I could handle this project by myself, it's great to get the support from different departments. Nylander said.

The project complemented previous work to Stollsteimer Creek done by the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) Forestry Division. The division provided hand augers for the project use of their shade house to store the plants, and technical assistance on the plants as well.

The Southern Ute Wildlife Division planted the larger existing trees along the creek.

It nice to rebuild and have a riparian forest along the creek and in 20 years to see the lands growing for the better, Nylander said. We are continuing the work the Wildlife [Division] has already done 5 years ago.

IHS/FLC VOLLEYBALL

Valdez ready to reinforce Skyhawks

By Joel Priest
SPECIAL TO THE DRUM

It s ironic that in such a high-flying sport as volley-ball, one of the most vital players on a team often stays completely ground-ed, lucky to even attempt takeoff if given the oppor-tunity to serve.

That was Chrystianne Valdez at Ignacio High School, particularly in her junior 2014 and senior 2015 seasons in which she dwelled mainly in the Lady Bobcats back row, known for both her leap-ing jump-serves as well as down-to-earth defense as the team s libero.

And for the very near future that doesn t seem likely to change pretty much the way Fort Lew-is College head coach Kelley Rifilato had envi-sioned it when pursuing the Class 2A local, a four-year starter.

I went up there, tried out with the team, Valdez said during an interview late in the 15-16 basketball sea-son. It was the best expe-rience I ve ever had play-ing volleyball, with such amazing athletes. And the next week, like four days later, I had a meeting with her and she said, How would you [like] to play for my team?

I was thrilled, Valdez said.

Graduated Ignacio senior Chrystianne Valdez leaps to launch a serve during Fall 2015 action inside IHS Gymnasium. Valdez will be taking her game to NCAA Division II Fort Lewis College.

Count proud parents Chris and Cindy in there as well, when their daugh-ter made her decision to continue her student-ath-lete career as near to Ig-nacio as possible, at the NCAA Division II level for the Skyhawks as part of a recruiting Class of 2016.

I told her I d talk to my parents and a few weeks ago I verbally committed! So that s where I ll be next year playing volleyball for Kelley Rifilato; that s a great honor.

Chrystianne is a local multisport athlete that will come in and bring excellent foot speed to the defensive specialist position, said Rifilato. “She possesses a

SPECIAL TO THE DRUM

Though the 2016 baseball season ended earlier than the Bobcats had planned, one regular s name again popped up on the statewide radar long after it was all said and done.

Owner of a .536 batting average (37-for-69) and 6-0 win-loss record on the mound (with a 2.12 ERA and scorching 55:5 strike-out-to-walk ratio) during Ignacio s 14-5 resurgence this spring, since-graduat-ed senior Tucker Ward was well feared in the 2A/1A San Juan Basin League and a deserving Honorable Mention All-2A recipient.

Officially released June 9, the 2016 All-State Base-ball Teams, presented by CHSAANow.com, Colo-radoPreps.com and Max-Preps.com, were created following a lengthy process including nominations from leagues, and then a vote of head coaches.

the Mustangs learned from two season-opening losses against California teams (at a tournament in San Diego) and finished with the State Championship after ripping Limon 13-4 in Pueblo.

Dawson, the 11-seed in the tell-all 16-team brack-et, finished the season 18-4 overall. Counting a road-doubleheader sweep achieved after 17 total innings, with each game exceeding regulation length of Eastern Plains rival Burlington amongst their own highlights, the beaten Badgers (the bracket s ini-tial No. 13) ended up 19-5. Very familiar to Ward and IHS, and his own team upset and eliminated in extra innings by LHS in the quar-terfinals, Hotchkiss senior P/INF Cesar Gonzales was also a First Team selection, with fellow senior Dom Beck and junior Eli Kirk re-ceiving Honorable Mention after helping the Bulldogs finish their abbreviated campaign 18-3.

Sinking three threes himself, 4A Fort Lupton s Patrick Vasquez netted 13 in defeat for coaches Terry Dunn (4A Colorado Springs Sierra) and Scott Parker (3A Parachute Grand Valley), but 1A Dove Creek s Jordan Ernst and local Clayton Brubacher of 3A AHS went scoreless while every Black member scored at least four. Additionally, IHS gradu-ated Ellie Seibel also ended her prep career on a high note, booking one three-pointer and fivepoints total to help the All-State Girls Blue Team down the Red 82-68 in the day s firstfinale.

Coached by 4A Long-mont s Mike Knaus and Bob Wiley, the Blues entered intermission leading 44-28, and would get a team-best 20 from 4A Highlands Ranch Valor Christian s Heidi Hammond. 5A High-lands Ranch High School s Symone Starks contributed 16 and 1A Akron s Alexan-dria A.J. Indian Montessori Academy, Ignacio Senior Center, and Peaceful Spirits Center. Additionally, there are plans on bringing a gardening program to the Southern Ute Detention Center.

This is an opportunity to share with our membership, because gardening is what we did as tribal people, stated Tribal Councilwoman Amy J. Barry at the garden's launch. It's a historical achievement for our diabetes program and the [Southern Ute Health Department]. As long as we support this initiative, we will see federal funding to support more of these.

In 2015, the Southern Ute Indian Tribe was awarded the Good Health & Wellness for Indians Grant from the Albuquerque Area Indian Health Board. The grant allows the health department to choose three health initiatives that would be funded: traditional foods, breastfeeding, and physical activities.

The idea of constructing a spiral garden came from its unique design. Plants that need the least water are rooted at the top; the ones that need more are placed below. When watered, the stream will seep down to the bottom herbs with just enough moisture for it to grow.

Namichen Oberly and I were able to build the brick walling in just a day, about four to five hours," stated Frost. I really like the design because it could be put in smaller areas. The Academy will be building their own spiral next, and then we development in the other locations. We hope these spirals will encourage people to build their own once they see them. If someone wants to build their own, we can provide the resources for them.

Towaoc, Colo. Ute Mountain Ute Councilman Malcolm Lehi gave a history of the Inter-Tribal Coalition Ute Mountain Ute, Ute Indian Tribe, Navajo Nation, Hopi Tribe and the Pueblo of Zuni that was formed in the effort to conserve the Bears Ears cultural landscape. Structures and sites in the region have been vandalized, looted and desecrated over the years and with a designation the coalition hopes the region will be better protected.

Lehi asked Southern Ute to join the sister tribes and support the coalition's mission to preserve Bears Ears.

We are asking Southern Ute [Indian Tribe] to support us and other tribes that are asking President Obama to turn this into a National Monument, Lehi said.

The coalition has been working on getting support from as many tribes as they can and requested the Tri-Ute Council's support.

It's important that we do show support for Bears Ears, Southern Ute Chairman, Clement J. Frost said. Look at the ties that band us together as Native Americans; it's important we continue to support things like this.

The Tri-Ute Council took a vote and passed the resolution of support making it the first joint resolution passed by the Tri-Ute Council.

History was made with this, Lehi said. Not just for us, it is for all tribal nations.

The Tri-Ute Council also used the time to discuss the ongoing issue of providing services to Ute tribal members that reside on sister tribes' reservations. The topic has been talked about but has had trouble catching on due to the changing Executive Offices of each tribe. The Tri-Ute Council heard from the Executive Offices of the three sister tribes for the first time last week.

We got quite a bit of work to do yet, Ute Mountain Executive Director Kermit Palmer said.

The Executive Officers must figure out how a budget will work; who will be in charge of the services on each reservation; and what the guidelines and protocols will be.

We've heard it through the years; here are their needs. [Tribal members] would greatly appreciate if we came together as leaders to help them, Ute Mountain Councilwoman, Priscilla Blackhawk-Rentz said.

Frost agreed stating, "It's a good start ... My focus is to be focused on the people. Focus on our people's needs. What are the terms when they live away from their own people?"

Southern Ute Councilwoman, Amy J. Barry asked the Executive team to get the demographics of each reservation to see how many tribal members live on a fellow sister reservation. Doing so will help with the budgeting process, she said.

The Council also discussed the $75,000 collective commitment that History Colorado is requesting from the three Ute tribes to support the exhibits at the Ute Indian Museum in Montrose, Colo. a $25,000 commitment from each tribe.

Chairman Frost, said the Southern Ute Indian Tribe needs more information from the Ute Museum on the expenditures before the tribe can agree to move forward with the commitment. The Tri-Ute Council agreed with Frost, and no decisions were made pending more information from History Colorado.

Also present at the meeting were tribal elders from the three Ute Tribes. The elders listened in on the meeting and used the meeting as a platform to provide some guidance to the council.

Ute Mountain Ute elder, Betty Howe, talked about language and urged the Tri-Ute Council to keep the youth and culture in mind when making decisions.

Ute Indian Tribe elder, Jonas Grant and his wife Joy, also gave a presentation to the Tri-Ute Council asking them to support the Shoshonean-Numic Language Reunion. The reunion is held annually and was formed when questions arose of tradition and origins of the Shoshone Tribes and the Comanche, and also the relationship of the Ute and Paiute Tribes.

That's part of our language, Grant said. That's why we came to Tri-Ute to encourage you to send people to the reunion.

Grant also said he would like to see a Ute Nation color guard come together. Grant talked passionately about the sister tribes supporting one another and would like to see more Ute Nation rather than the three tribes being separated.

Southern Ute elder, Judy Lansing also sat in on the meeting and said she feels leadership needs to include all the elders more.

Get the elders involved, she said. They want to be involved to help and tell stories and feel good about themselves and the community.

The next Tri-Ute Council meeting is scheduled to take place in Ignacio, Colo. during the Southern Ute Tribal Fair.

COMMUNITY VOICES

VETERANS HONOR BREAKFAST THANKS

Thank you to all the veterans and families who attended the Veterans Honor Breakfast on May 29, 2016.

Thank you to the families who donated food and drink items. Thanks, Randy Baker, Sr. and Marlene, Madalena and Byron Chavarillo, Benda Watts, Tim Watts, Councilwoman Amy Barry, Joycelyn Dutchie and family, Connie and Brian from Sky Ute Casino.

Also, thanks to Mr. Begay and family for the Iwo Jima caps given to all veterans who were attendance.

Special thanks to Jontique Velasco and the other staff members from the Multipurpose center. You all made it possible to make sure the event went smoothly.

If there is anyone else I failed to mention, it was not intentional.

Thank you all,
Dona Frost

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS
Southern Ute Indian Tribe
Comprehensive Master Land Use Plan

OWNER
*Southern Ute Indian Tribe
Department of Planning
P. O. Box 737
116 Memorial Drive
Ignacio, Colorado 81137
970-563-4749*

Separate sealed bids to provide land use planning services and assistance for updating the Southern Ute Tribe's Comprehensive Master Land Use Plan will be received by the Southern Ute Indian Tribe at the Tribal Planning Department office located at 116 Memorial Drive in Ignacio, Colorado 81137 until 2 p.m. on Friday, July 29, 2016 and then at said office privately opened and reviewed. Bids received after this time will not be accepted and will be returned unopened. A mandatory site visit meeting is scheduled for Thursday, July 14, 2016 at 2 p.m. To receive a copy of the RFP and/or for information on the site visit contact the Tribal Planning Department at the address and/or number indicated above. Proposals will only be accepted by interested parties who have attended the site meeting mentioned above. The Southern Ute Tribe's Comprehensive Master Land Use Plan is a planning document used to identify land use designation in a pre-determined area surrounding the Town of Ignacio and Tribal Campus in Southwestern Colorado. The consultant will perform a number of duties to help identify future land use designation, Tribal Campus expansion, assessed parking needs and much more. The Southern Ute Indian Tribe has adopted a Tribal Employment Rights Code, which provides for Indian preference in contracting and employment. To receive a copy of the Code, or for more information, consultants should contact the Southern Ute TERO Office at 970-563-0117. For the purposes of this RFP, Qualified local Indian Owned Businesses certified through Southern Ute TERO Office will receive preference in accordance with the Code. A TERO Certified Indian Owned Business will, if its initial bid is not within 5% of the lowest bid by a qualified, non-certified or non-Indian owned business, be given a single opportunity to submit a revised bid. Proof of certification as an Indian Owned Business by the Tribe's TERO Office will be required if claiming this preference. The Code will apply to all sub-contracting, if any, which may be needed in the course of this project. In addition, pursuant to the Code, the successful contractor will be required to pay a TERO fee in the amount of 2% of the total project cost. The Southern Ute Indian Tribe reserves the right to reject any and all proposals, to waive any informality in proposals and to accept the bid deemed, in the opinion of the Tribe, to be in the best interest of the Southern Ute Indian Tribe.

PUBLIC NOTICE
U.S. Environmental Protection Agency
Announcement of Proposed Groundwater Permit Action

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Region 8 (EPA) intends to issue an Underground Injection Control (UIC) permit-related action, under the authority of the Safe Drinking Water Act and UIC Program regulations, for the Soute 32-11 #10-5 well operated by Red Willow Production Co, EPA Permit No. CO20460-01919, in La Plata County, CO. The proposed action would authorize underground injection of fluids for the purpose of disposal. The EPA will be giving public notice of the action and requesting comment on its website at <https://www2.epa.gov/uic/underground-injection-control-epa-region-8-co-mt-nd-sd-ut-and-wy>, for a minimum of 30 days. Notification of any extension of the public comment period will appear at the web address only and will not appear in this newspaper. Alternatively, the public may contact Wendy Cheung at cheung.wendy@epa.gov, 800-227-8917 extension 312-6242 or 303-312-6242, to obtain information about the proposed action, including copies of associated documentation, or to be added to the notification list for any extension of the public comment period and any final EPA decision.

FLY-FISHING

Lunches: Nothing over-the-top

Don Oliver
SPECIAL TO THE DRUM

Lunch, dinner in the southeast, is a very important time of the day. It s especially important after a fun-filled, active morning of fly-fishingIt’s what is needed to recharge your batteries. If you re fishing by yourself it’s easy to have a well-balanced noon meal. If you are flyfishingwith a guide it can be a very different experience.

I have been fortunate to have had guided trips in locations that include, Argentina, the Bahamas, and the majority of the states in the U.S. Having been guided in all those places I have seen everything from nothing to over-the-top, in lunches. That brings me to what a paying flyfisher might expect a guide to provide for lunch.

Let s start with over-the-top lunches. That award goes to Argentina. A typical stream-side lunch begins with hors d oeuvres. That is followed with an appetizer, then a salad. Next is a hot entree, cooked on site. This meal is washed down with a very good Malbec. There is also desert, not just a cookie either. I did have to bring my own cigar. This is a normal lunch for Argentina. Every lodge I have fishedwith had similar lunches. It s great, but a nap is needed before the afternoon fishingbegins.

In the Bahamas and U.S. all the guides have provided a good lunch.

“What should you, as a customer, expect your guide to provide in the way of food and beverage?” The simple answer is don’t expect anything.

Not the affair as in South America, but a good lunch similar to what I packed for my clients or myself. I said all guides, that is not entirely correct. The one state where guides didn t provide lunch, and in some cases even water, is Florida, in particular the saltwater guides. Of all the saltwater guides I have used in Florida, not one has provided food. A few brought water. I ve even had Florida guides ask if they could have part of the lunch I brought for me. I have to assume they think their sole job is to put you on fish,therefore, sustenance and water is up to you.

Those two extremes bring me to the question, What should you, as a customer, expect your guide to provide in the way of food and beverage? The simple answer is don t expect anything; ask what is provided, and no one will be unhappy. Trust me, a guide does not want an unhappy client. It s not good for business.

When booking a guide, if you want a lunch provided, let him know. Don t go crazy and ask for fried chicken when a long hike is needed to get to your spot. Fried chicken is heavy to carry, and bears can smell it. Have a conversation with the guide about your likes, dislikes, special diet issues, and food allergies. I have shown up with food not suitable for the special needs of some of my past clients. Also, water is a must. Be sure and take a camelback (hydration pack) if water is not provided. If it is, offer to carry what you ll be consuming. A guide doesn t need to be carrying water for two. Once a menu has been agreed to, clean your plate. Lunches are a big expense for guides, and having food go to waste is just not necessary.

Last but not least. If your guide has exceeded your lunch expectations be sure and thank them with a tip. It does help cover the cost of meals.

A sneak peek of the mural shows the Earth with purple mountains beneath it. Concept of the mural: Young people stand at the junction of two paths, one dead-ends at the couch while another leads to a successful life represented by graduation, college, family, sports and money!

strong serve and serve-reception game.

Defensively for Rifilato in 15, junior DS/L Ally Dell Amico led FLC in digs with 429 (4.47 per game), with freshman OH and team MVP Matisse Monty following with 302 (3.15 per). Redshirt-freshman DS Clara Salopek saw plenty of action, coming up with 87 digs in 17 match appearances, and now-graduated senior DS Lindley Gallegos finished her career with 436 in 81.

Libero that s where I m going to be, said Valdez, who came up with 262 reported digs and 568 receptions (against just 46 errors) as a senior, helping IHS go 15-9 in 15. They have two senior liberos, so they haven t decided if they re going to redshirt me yet or not, but I m excited whether or not I do!

Looking to improve upon a 5-21 (2-16 Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference) season ended by seven consecutive losses, FLC s 2016 will begin with a trip to San Marcos, Calif., to face Denver-based Johnson & Wales University on Sept. 2, beginning the CSU-San Marcos Invitational.

The Hawks will also face Santa Barbara, Calif.-based NAIA Westmont College later in the day, then do a double on the 3rd against Sonoma State (Rohnert Park, Calif.) University and the tournament-hosting Cougars.

Graduated Ignacio senior Chrystianne Valdez goes low along IHS Gymnasium’s floor to come up with a ball during the Fall 2015 season. Valdez will be taking her game to NCAA Division II Fort Lewis College.

A trip to Wichita Falls, Tex., then follows for the Sept. 9-10 Midwestern State University Hampton Inn-vitational, at which Fort Lewis will again face four opponents including the hosting Mustangs on Day 1 at 11:30 a.m. Southeastern Oklahoma (Durant, Okla.) State University then awaits at 4:30 p.m., and Day 2 opposition will be Southern Nazarene (Bethany, Okla.) University and Emporia (Kan.) State University.

RMAC action then gets underway in South Dakota with FLC visiting South Dakota M&T in Rapid City on the 16th, then Black Hills State in Spearfish on the 17th. And finally, Fort Lewis home opener is slated for Sept. 23 against UC-Colorado Springs (16-12, 11-7 RMAC in 2015) at 7:00 p.m., with NCAA Tournament-qualifying MSU-Denver (20-12, 14-4) coming to Whalen Gymnasium for a 7 p.m. start the next night.

MANIAC BRAINIACS

Having earned multiple Superintendent s Awards at Ignacio for her academic efforts and resulting grade-point average, Valdez a four-sport prep will be joining an athletic department whose 14 varsity programs (and cycling club team) combined for an impressive 3.05 GPA during the 2015-16 year.

That mark was .02 points higher than in 14-15 and the fifthtime since 2006-07 that the Skyhawks registered a 3.00 or better collectively.
